

Feedback for RRMP Literature Review [Formative]

Tutor completing formative feedback: Karen Outram	Student number: Nitin Subramaniam
Details of any extensions etc:	Submission Attempt: Formative

Thank you for submitting your Literature Review formative.

Thank you for choosing a title from the University of Essex title list.

There is a very brief outline of your intentions in your formative document, and so I will feed back on what I see there.

There is a list of intentions regarding the subjects matters that you are reflecting upon drawing through the content. As the content is a list of intentions, what I would say at this stage is that the Literature Review itself has a limited word count. Your final Literature Review will need to be very focused.

When you start to research your current 'list' you will find that the word count stacks up really quickly from a research and content perspective. I am specifically making this point here, so that when you complete your Literature Review you don't end up going into too many tangents that will actually then dilute the discussion.

My advice to you at this stage is to engage in some deep research around the subjects that you have suggested you will investigate and then see how this shapes up regarding word count etc.

The very best of luck now as you move towards to the final summative submission,

With best wishes

Karen

